

The Palais Royal Sale of 1905 Curtains

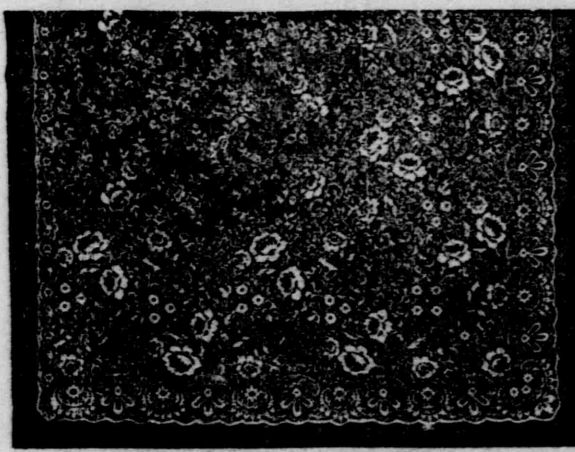

The makers of Lace Curtains belittle the very patterns they raved over—just before they introduce their "new" patterns. This occurs once a year, at this time. The Palais Royal representative annually puts on a very sympathetic expression—and buys these "old" patterns at nearly half regular prices. The Palais Royal patrons, who have learned to know the "old" are very little different and seldom less attractive than the "new," are eager patrons. The 1905 distribution is nearing the end, and no such bargains will be obtainable again, not for a year to come.

Second Floor Departments

As with curtains, so with table linens, the "old" styles must now be called very homely and undesirable, and the "new" the most beautiful and essential. Six of the "old" 1905 styles are pictured here—and very much less prices are asked than for identical qualities in "new" patterns. Nearly 10,000 yards to be distributed—then no more such bargains until a year passes again.

5,211 Pictures at 49c Each

An Appropriate Frame Given With Each

Such frames, made to order, would cost from $1 to $2 each. Made up during the dull season, when the maker was anxious to keep his force together, we bought at the lowest prices of a year. So with the pictures—and choice is offered of subjects for every room. Note that the frames include choice of gilt, oak, and black effects, and that some of the pictures are works of art, measuring as much as 14 by 20 inches. Each in frame at 49c for choice. Exhibition and sale on fourth floor.
